The artist's way

From the earthy yellow of Van Gogh's sunflowers to the subtly distressed layers of a collage, Uf Select features colors, patterns, and textures inspired by artisanal techniques and traditional handicraft. It comprises three distinct collections — Montage, Impasto and Lino — to empower designs that are a true work of art.

Montage offers a natural and subtly distressed look with its weathered, rich surface that mimics a collage.

Impasto balances a classic appearance and strong visual impact with a textural quality that is reminiscent of layered paint on canvas.

Lino is inspired by finely cut linoleum printing, creating the look of a textile weave with its refined crosshatch design.

All collections are two-toned, subtly enhancing their textural effect and creating more dimension in final application.

It's all up to hue

The artist's palette is our muse for this year's color refresh. Montage and Impasto welcome 38 new colors reflecting the hues habitually used by master creatives.

Warm, saturated organic tones, botanical greens, softly fluid blues, and shades of rose signify what's ahead in color for 2023 and beyond.

Make your masterpiece

From Renaissance to contemporary, the new additions of Montage and Impasto are thoughtfully curated to uplift Uf Select's existing color foundation.

Matisse Blue

In the 15th century, a finely ground blue glass called smalt came into use for painting, and it continues to be an important hue in an artist's palette.

Monet Green

In the Middle Ages, Italian painters used natural, green pigments like soil and plant extracts in their art.

Van Dyke Brown

Named after Flemish painter Anthony Van Dyke, this dark brown color is a natural reflection of the earth's soil.

Van Gogh Yellow

The yellow ochre hue is found throughout the world in many shades from yellow to brown and is derived from natural minerals.

Vermeer Red

Inspired by an important insect dye source, the cochineal beetle, that creates an opulent range of fuchsias, reds, and purples.

Whistler Gray

In painting, gray is not a dull color. It can add tremendous depth by influencing shadows and contrasting darkness and light.
